Indiana's world-class communities are exceptionally attractive for growing businesses, and the Community Development Division helps cities, towns and counties continue to improve. It does this in a variety of ways, including grants to assist with public infrastructure or childcare accessibility, matching savings accounts for low-income Hoosiers, and tax credits that support non-profit organizations.

brownfields

Brownfields: Abandoned, idled or under-used real property where expansion or redevelopment is complicated by real or perceived contamination.

Animated Brownfield Image

Once thriving areas of economic activity, today brownfields lie abandoned often contaminated from past uses. Sitting unused or under-utilized, brownfields are impediments to economic impediments to economic development in rural and urban communities across our Nation. But redeveloped, brownfields can be catalysts for community revitalization. To help communities address brownfields. Vice President Gore announced the Brownfields National Partnership. The National Partnership brings together Federal agencies to address brownfields cleanup and redevelopment in a more coordinated approach.
